

Ranger of the Year Packet

Evaluation Year Fall of 2007 through Summer of 2008

This Packet will include:

- An explanation of the purpose of the Ranger of the Year program
- Explanation of the ROTY process for each level of evaluation
- Reproducible copies of the ROTY Study Guides for boys

Introduction

Purpose of Ranger of the Year: To challenge boys to set goals for achievement that have a pre-determined set of rewards. The design of Ranger of the Year is to develop and train as many boys as possible to become Rangers of the Year. Each church, section, district, and region should endeavor to produce as many Rangers of the Year as possible. We want all boys to achieve, to grow, and to become successful men of God.

Timelines for Ranger of the Year:

- Outpost Ranger of the Year should be awarded before the beginning of the new school year (by mid-September).
- Section Ranger of the Year should be held before the end of September.
- District Ranger of the Year should be held before the end of October.
- Region Ranger of the Year should be held before the middle of February.
- The National Rangers of the Year will be eligible to attend the National Council held in March in Springfield, MO.

Ranger of the Year Qualification

There are two ways for qualifying to participate in the ROTY evaluations.

Category A:

If a boy has earned both the required number of points on his ROTY application and achieved the advancement level stated in the ROTY chart, he will automatically qualify to participate at that level (section or district). There is no limit on the number of boys that can qualify to participate in the ROTY. Once a boy has entered the ROTY evaluations, he can continue to advance to the next level as long as he achieves an Outstanding level (85% or higher) in his evaluation.

Category B:

OUTPOST: In the event that an outpost does not have a minimum of two boys from each Royal Rangers group who qualify as per Category A, they may send the appropriate number of boys from each group with the highest application scores to the sectional evaluation. These boys will be evaluated and receive recognition for Excellent or Outstanding levels, depending on their evaluation score. All boys who achieve an Outstanding level at section or district are qualified to continue to the next level of evaluation.

SECTION & DISTRICT: In the event that a section or district does not have a minimum of two boys from each Royal Rangers group who qualify as per Category A, they may send the appropriate number of boys with the highest evaluation scores to the next level of evaluation. These boys will be evaluated at the next level and receive recognition for Excellent or Outstanding levels, depending on their evaluation score. All boys who achieve an Outstanding level at section or district are qualified to continue to the next level of evaluation.

Outpost ROTY

ROTY Application Information: The commander and/or parent can assist the boy in filling out the form correctly. Use the Application Instructions found on the national RR website to fill out the application. The chart on the first page of the application will determine how the boy qualifies to be an Outpost Ranger of the Year. Evaluations are not necessary at this level.

NOTE: If the outpost has one or no boys who qualify for the Section ROTY at each age level, then they can send two of their most qualified boys to the Section ROTY at each age level. It is important that every outpost be represented at the section level.

Bible Merits and/or Memorization: Throughout the year, each boy is learning about biblical truths and memorizing Scriptures.

Medals, Certificates, and Awards: The Outpost ROTY medallion (item #15-7650), available through Gospel Publishing House, is available for each boy achieving the level of Outpost ROTY. It has a blue ribbon that is draped over the neck. A certificate should be awarded to the boy. A special nametag can also be awarded. The specifications below can be used when ordering it from a local trophy shop.

General Information for Section, District, and Region Event

Boys' scores will help them see how they measure up to an established standard, what they can do to improve their skills, and how to set measurable goals and plan to achieve those goals.

- All boys will be evaluated using objective mechanisms. This will insure a standard that can be consistently applied throughout the United States. Boys will be encouraged to work towards high standards of achievement instead of competing against each other.
- If a boy meets the qualification requirements to attend the District ROTY event, he is not required to attend the Section ROTY event. However, it is highly recommended to attend the Section ROTY event to help the boy better prepare and determine his readiness for the District ROTY event.
- The boys will no longer be required to bring their workbooks to the ROTY events.

ROTY Application Information: Each boy participating in any level of ROTY will submit the Ranger of the Year application. The application and the evaluation will measure the total boy and the four ways he grows.

Evaluation: The ROTY application can help commanders and boys determine how well they have done in the past year. They can then see how they can improve and what activities they should plan for the coming year.

Bible Merits and/or Memorization: The specific Scriptures and Bible merits boys will need to concentrate on can be found in the ROTY Study Guides. Boys should have a thorough knowledge of these biblical requirements. Questions will be drawn directly from the materials found in the boys' workbooks. The evaluation at each level will be more comprehensive than the one before. The boys should study the information from their workbooks and the required memory scriptures.

Costs and Expenses: Each level of ROTY may require a registration fee for participating in the event. This fee and other expenses incurred by the boy are his responsibility. These may include, but are not limited to, registration fee, travel, food, and lodging.

Preparation for ROTY Evaluation: Commanders may want to provide a time for boys to fill out their forms and finish any work that may be incomplete. Below is a plan to help the boys in your outpost prepare for and meet the high expectations of a Ranger of the Year. Every boy should be encouraged and challenged to excel in the Ranger of the Year program.

Commander

- Review the information in the ROTY Study Guide.
- Allow the boys to demonstrate their skills. Giving boys opportunities to train others will provide the best opportunities for learning.
- Maintain good records. This includes the boys' workbooks. They should keep all their work in their workbooks so they can refer to it often. In addition, use the RR data tracking software available to all chartered outpost to track all the activities, events, and achievements for the boys.
- Encourage the boys to read the suggested chapters from their handbooks, listed on the ROTY Study Guide.

- Review times—The eleventh week of every quarter is designated as a review week. Use that time to reinforce knowledge and skills. In addition, you may want to hold merit campouts or merit overnights at the church.
- ROTY Review Day—Establish a review time between the Section ROTY and District ROTY events. Invite all the boys to spend the day reviewing the requirements and materials. Enlist the help of the boys to teach and/or review. You could fill the day with activities and fun in order to give the boys a balanced day. Provide a simple lunch or snacks.

Boy

- Review the information in the ROTY Study Guide.
- Put all your work in your workbook so you can refer to it later when you need to study for the ROTY evaluation.
- Read the suggested chapters from your handbook, listed on the ROTY Study Guide.
- Practice the speech. (This is for Adventure and Expedition Rangers at the district and region levels only.) Make sure to have good visual aids, PowerPoint, or other aids to enhance the speech. Make sure the speech is between 3-5 minutes in length.

ROTY Study Guide:

- Uniform Inspection: It is based on the boys' handbooks. The boys will be evaluated in their Class B khaki uniform (Class B red shirt for Ranger Kids). They can wear short sleeve or long sleeve shirts, but they must wear long pants.
- Skills Evaluation: Boys will be able to choose three of four skill merits for their evaluation. In addition, they will have to demonstrate some basic Royal Ranger skills. Ranger Kids will be asked to sign (sign language) three Scriptures from memory.
- Written Evaluation: Boys will be expected to have general Royal Ranger knowledge, based on the handbooks. Part of the written evaluation will include their knowledge of specified Bible merits and skill merits. In addition, achievement awards, merits awards, and other advancement questions will be part of the evaluation. The evaluations will be age-appropriate for every Royal Ranger group.
- Speech (District & Region Levels): This is for boys in Adventure and Expedition Rangers ONLY. They will need to prepare a 3 to 5-minute speech. The boys are encouraged to develop visual aids, PowerPoints, or other multi-media aids to enhance their presentations. Review the Public Speaking merit for information on how to best prepare and for the format used in judging. (NOTE: If a boy is using PowerPoint or other computer aided formats, he will need to bring a CD with him. A computer and projector will be available for him to use.)
- Goal-Setting Interview: Boys will be interviewed by a panel of commanders to assist the boy in setting goals, making plans to achieve them, and determining areas in which he can improve. This is a non-scoring part of the ROTY.

Day of the ROTY Evaluation: The boys will typically begin the ROTY with an introductory meeting to explain the day's agenda. It is important to make note of the instructions. Boys will rotate through stations as they demonstrate, write, or meet with commanders. The commanders evaluating the boys should provide a comfortable environment for the evaluation. The Adventure and Expedition Ranger boys will be given time to set up their displays and visual aids for the required speech.

Evaluation/Review:

The uniform, written, skills, and speech (when applicable) evaluations will be available for review to the boys, leaders, and parents present. This will take place sometime after the evaluation process has been completed and before presentation of awards. This review session will be limited to a maximum of 30 minutes. Clarification of point total and grading marks may be requested only during this time. All scoring decisions by the evaluation coordinator will be considered final at the conclusion of the event. The evaluation material will be retained by the section/district/region and will not be released to the boys. Each boy will receive a summary of how he did to take with him. He can use this information to determine where he scored well and where he needs to improve for the next level of ROTY. If he does not advance to the next level, he can determine what he needs to do the following year to improve his skills and knowledge.

Evaluation Feedback: The evaluation material is prepared by the national office and reviewed by a team of skilled professionals. Challenges of the evaluation material itself are not permitted at the event. All participants will be requested to complete and submit a feedback form at the event. Event organizers will forward those forms to the national office for review.

Outstanding and Excellent Levels of Achievement: During the ROTY events at the section and above, the boys will be challenged to strive for the following levels of achievement. Please note: Only those boys attaining the Outstanding and Excellent levels of achievement will carry the title of Ranger of the Year.

- The Outstanding Level of Achievement is attained with a total score of 85% or higher.
- The Excellent Level of Achievement is attained with a score equal to or greater than 70% but less than 85% on the total evaluation.
- Those boys scoring less than 70% on their evaluation should receive a certificate of participation.
- Attendance and participation in Ranger of the Year at each level, section through region, is required in order to earn the drape medal and ROTY nametag.

Section ROTY

Application Information: The chart on the first page of the application will determine how the boy qualifies to attend the Section Ranger of the Year. Use the Application Instructions found on the national RR website to fill out the application. His ability to achieve the “outstanding” level during the evaluation at the ROTY will be based solely upon his skills, knowledge, and achievement.

The section may have an additional form for the boys to fill out and send to them. This will help them prepare by determining the number of boys that will be participating. Boys may qualify to participate at the Section ROTY by category “A” or “B.”

NOTE: If the section has one or no boys who qualify for the District ROTY at each age group, then they can send two of their most qualified boys to the District ROTY at each age group. It is important that every section be represented at the district level.
